

I beg you not to alter the Indiana Telephone Privacy Law. Unsolicited phone calls are an invasion of privacy within our homes and takes valuable time away from our families. It also creates hardships on those who work odd hours and sleep during usual call hours. Banks are no different than any other telemarketer. If they want to solicit my business, they may use the U.S. Postal Service and pay for the priviledge.
Thank you for your consideration in this matter.
